Tuition grants are scholarships disbursed through the Office of Financial Aid that are earmarked specifically for payment of tuition. They may be offered to degree-seeking graduate students who are enrolled full- or part-time. Tuition grants may be combined with other forms of scholarship or fellowship support. The decision to award a grant, including the amount, is made by the graduate program director in consultation with the chair, and the dean or designee of the college.

Tuition Waivers

Tuition waivers are partial-to-full remittances issued by the Office of Finance to accompany graduate assistantships. Waivers are only applied to graduate-level coursework. The decision to award a waiver, including the percentage, is made by the chair in consultation with the graduate program director and approved by the dean or designee of the college. Students holding tuition waivers who withdraw from courses may be held personally responsible for repayment of funds utilized.

Tuition Remittances

Tuition remittances are financial awards made in connection with a fellowship, an assistantship, or hourly position funded through a sponsored grant or contract by the Research Foundation. They may be
